Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Reporting Exercises: A Praxis of the Phonographic Reporter, or Reporter s Companion The secret of quick writing is, much practice; and this supposes something to be written. Exercises so constructed as to bring frequently before the eye, and under the hand, those principles of abbreviation which render Phonography, as adapted to reporting, the briefest system of writing extant, must be more advantageous to the student than the writing of miscellaneous matter from books and newspapers. In the Phonographic Reporter, par. 10, it is observed that in order to impress the reporting grammalogues and distinguished words, etc., on the mind, the reader should form sentences, including as many of them as he can, and write them down until he becomes thoroughly familiar with them. A few examples are then given, on the model of which the pupil is recommended to construct more. But it is not to be expected that pupils are capable of carrying out this advice to the extent necessary to qualify them to become expert reporters in about twelve months. An attempt to carry out this suggestion has led to the compilation of the following Exercises, which will be found serviceable in impressing the contractions, phrases, etc., on the memory. They should be practised by the pupil until he can write them off correctly from dictation. The compilation of the Exercises is mainly the work of Mr W. Silver, teacher of Phonography, Glasgow, who thinks that an apology is due to the reader for the strange style of many of the sentences. We think that no apology is necessary to those who know how difficult it is to construct sentences with a limited...
