Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Under the Bush Administration, U.S.China-Taiwan relations have undergone a number of changes. Initially, the new Administration seemed to abandon the long-standing U.S. policy of strategic ambiguity on Taiwan in favor of strategic clarity that placed more emphasis on Taiwan s interests and less on PRC concerns. Among other things, President Bush publicly stated that the United States would do whatever it takes to help Taiwan s defense -- a position more supportive of Taiwan than had been articulated by previous U.S. presidents. In April 2001, the President also approved a substantial sale of U.S. weapons to Taiwan, including Kidd-class destroyers, anti-submarine P-3 Orion aircraft, and diesel submarines. The White House also was more accommodating to visits from Taiwan officials than previous U.S. Administrations, and permitted visits from Taiwan s president in 2001 and 2003, and from Taiwan s vice president and defense minister in 2002. The Administration s initially assertive posture was in keeping with growing congressional sentiment that greater U.S. support was needed for Taiwan s defense needs, particularly given the PRC s military build-up in southern...
